GENERAL INFORMATION: Kansas State University is a land grant institution with an enrollment of approximately 24,000 students in eight colleges and the graduate school. The College of Human Ecology has 104 faculty serving approximately 2,400 students through three departments and one School. The multidisciplinary School of Family Studies and Human Services consists of 35 faculty, 700 undergraduate students, 180 master's students, and 55 doctoral students.

The Personal Financial Planning unit at Kansas State University offers four programs (B.S., Certificate, M.S., and Ph.D.) registered with the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. The graduate certificate program is a 14-month program of study consisting of six eight-week, online courses. The Master's program is offered entirely online in cooperation with eight universities through the Great Plains Interactive Distance Education Alliance. The doctoral program is a hybrid program; students take courses online during the fall and spring semesters, and participate in 10-day intensive courses on campus in August and an international experience in their final summer.

SALARY: A competitive salary, commensurate with qualifications and experience, will be provided.

HOW TO APPLY: Candidates must submit a letter of application that includes specifics about their teaching and research experience, their curriculum vita, official academic transcripts, and three letters of reference to:
